

PHILIP SEGUIN

TRUMPET

Philip Seguin has been a member of the Windsor Symphony Orchestra since 1983. Mr. Seguin is also a member of the Stratford Shakespeare Festival Orchestra, and has previously performed with the Windsor Light Opera Orchestra and the orchestra at Huron Country Playhouse. He has held posts with symphony orchestras at both Winnipeg and Thunder Bay and frequently performs with the Kitchener-Waterloo Symphony and National Ballet of Canada Orchestra.

Aside from his duties as an orchestral musician, Mr. Seguin has toured, performed, and recorded with numerous ensembles, most notably Calgary's Foothills Brass, Toronto's Trillium Brass Quintet, and Ensemble Vivant.

Mr. Seguin received a bachelor of music degree from the University of Windsor where he was a student of James Tamburini and Kevin Good. While there, he served as Principal Trumpet with the International Youth Symphony under Wm. Bruce Curry. He was also a longtime student of the late Canadian trumpet virtuoso Erik Schultz, he attended the Keystone Brass Institute, and he participated in the Banff Centre's 'Academy of Brass' program.

Mr. Seguin has served on faculty for the Academie Ste. Cecile, the Inter-Provincial Music Camp, and the University of Western Ontario. He currently teaches trumpet at Toronto's York University.
